Mayone Proposes County-Wide Police Agency

By Matt Spireng

KINGSTON

Ulster County Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone today proposed doing away with all town and village police departments in Ulster County and incorporating the police officers in those departments into the Ulster County Sheriff's Department.

Mayone explained at a press conference today that the county-wide police department he is proposing would be funded initially by having tax revenues collected to run individual police departments turned into the county, which could purchase equipment and supplies in quantity to avoid costly purchasing practices.

According to the sheriff, through the establishment of a county-wide police department, the taxpayers would get increased police protection "with little or no increase in local taxes."

The county-wide police department, which would result in the elimination of police departments in 17 towns and three villages in the county, would also avoid the duplication of services which currently occurs and would make for more efficient police services throughout the county, Mayone suggested.

Mayone said his proposal would not affect the state police in Ulster County. "We would still be working as we are now in cooperation with them," he said.

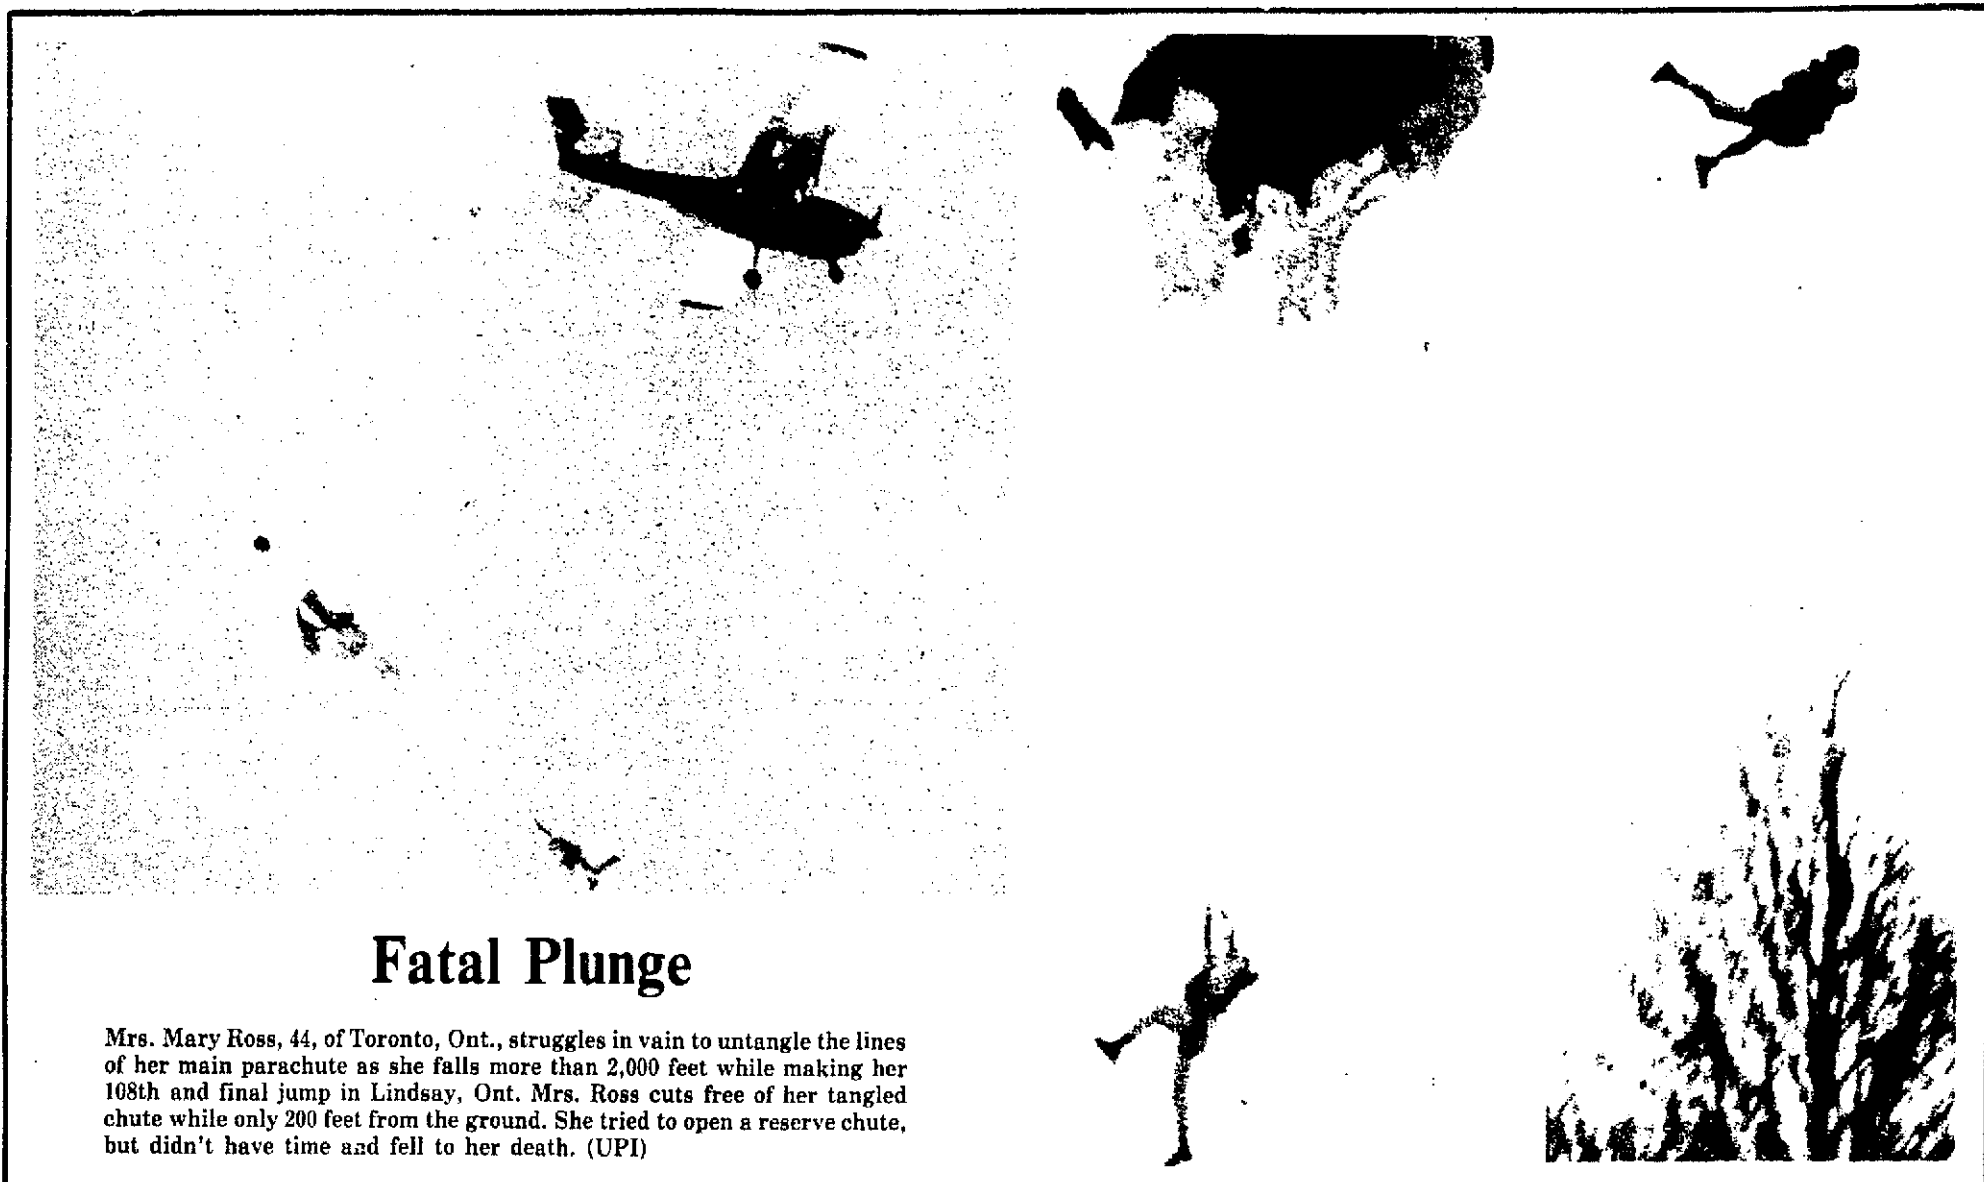

It also would not initially affect the Kingston Police Department, Mayone indicated, explaining that he has not fully explored the aspects of his proposal in regard to the Kingston Police Department.

The sheriff said two townships (Shandaken and Marletown) have already indicated full acceptance of the proposal and 80 per cent acceptance by the town board has been shown in the Town of Saugerties.

Mayone said his proposal would include having 45 police vehicles used in towns and villages in the county turned over to the sheriff's department as well as the $1,160,138 currently being spent on local police departments. The manpower of the individual departments (126 part-time officers and 67 full-time men) would all be incorporated into the sheriff's department, with the total of 193 men being used full-time.

Mayone said he rejects the idea of a county-wide police department separate from the sheriff's department because he "would rather have someone elected by the people than appointed by the politicians" to head the department and because a separate county-wide police system would be far too costly and would be "a burdensome duplication of existing services."

He cited the increase in crime and population which is taking place as major reasons for the need for a county-wide police department.

Fatal Plunge

Mrs. Mary Ross, 44, of Toronto, Ont., struggles in vain to untangle the lines of her main parachute as she falls more than 2,000 feet while making her 108th and final jump in Lindsay, Ont. Mrs. Ross cuts free of her tangled chute while only 200 feet from the ground. She tried to open a reserve chute, but didn't have time and fell to her death. (UPI)

'I Have Not Been Dishonest' . . . Sabino

TOWN OF ULSTER

"I've been criticized for various actions over the years, and I may not have been right 100 per cent of the time, but I have not been dishonest and I have not betrayed the voters' trust," Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino said today.

"I have always cared about the people in this town—it's my town, too," the Republican incumbent said. "It's my lifelong home, and even wild animals don't sully their own nests."

Noting that he took office in January, 1970, Sabino said he began work on plans for senior citizen housing, the sewer district, and the town office building during his first month in office.

"Day-to-day problems are many and varied, but a supervisor, to be effective and to insure the best possible services for town residents, must devote a great deal of thought, energy and time to the future of his township," Sabino said.

"Efficiency saves taxpayers money—immediately and over the long haul. We therefore had to consolidate town offices which had been scattered all over the town. (The new town hall) is beautiful, but more importantly, it is functional. It makes for efficient working conditions and efficient employees. And only $98,000 remains to be paid off over a five-year period."

"The town now has about 60 full-time employees. They have earned and have been given pay raises, and the town furnishes them a full hospitalization plan. I am proud of this."

Sabino said another source of pride is the town landfill. "Through wise management and close attention to problems as they occurred, we're going to have a usable landfill for years to come. This is quite an accomplishment in this day and age."

Turning to recreation, Sabino said that "facilities for all ages are an item of utmost importance. In this area, I made the first move toward obtaining St. George Park as a county recreational center, and a 10½-acre site on Esopus Avenue has been approved (subject to Albany's signature) for a recreational area with basketball, tennis, Little League, and other facilities.

"About 300 children took part in a summer program we initiated this past year at Chambers School. Scheduled for 1976 are five new ball fields with associated activities, made possible through the co-operation of the Kingston school district and the town board."

"We have established a full-time constabulary to beef up protection of the town's residential and business areas, with two patrol cars, five full-time and seven part-time men giving round-the-clock service."

"I now have a promise from the City of Kingston that the Spring Lake area will get water. I know what they have gone through there, and I think some of them know how hard we've tried to work it out."

"I am cooperating closely with Kingston Hospital officials in setting up the necessary facilities for their move to the town. Their relocation here is going to be a decided plus for town residents."

"Without the Route 9W improvements, the sewer district, and a climate of cooperation on all fronts, the hospital's move would not be in the works."

"Working together is the secret of progress. The Ulster Business and Professional Association is an excellent example. I've maintained a harmonious relationship with them, because it helps everyone. We have the advantage of a good tax base from business and industry in our town, and they have the advantage of a progressive community with a good work force and good buying power."

Sabino said he was confident that voters would "pay more attention to my record of solid achievement than to my opponents' unsuccessful attempts to discredit me."

UPI DATELINE

A Cold Shoulder

NEW YORK (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar el Sadat will get an official cold shoulder from the city Thursday during his visit to New York for an address before the United Nations.

Mayor Abraham Beame said Monday he refused a State Department request to greet Sadat, first Egyptian head of state to pay an official visit to the United States. "New York is a city of ethnic variety," Beame said. "I owe it to all of the groups who make up our city to speak out in their name against those who would see them maligned in a world forum."

"I believe it would be an act of hypocrisy on my part to participate in any welcoming ceremony with any chief of state who has been party to the United Nations resolution which seeks to revive a new form of racism as a substitute for the principles of understanding and peaceful negotiations upon which this world body was formed," he said.

Verdict in Two Weeks

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — If Karen Ann Quinlan is taken off the machine which keeps her alive, prosecutor Donald Collester says, the horror would just begin.

"Evil has very small beginnings," Collester told the court Monday in summation at the "right to die" trial. "When the quality of life replaces the sanctity of life, I fear evil has a beginning."

Karen, 21, has been in a coma since April 14 when, according to friends, she mixed alcohol with tranquilizers at a birthday party.

Her parents, Joseph and Julia Quinlan, say the best part of life has passed her by, that she has suffered irreversible brain damage and that she lives in a chronic vegetative state.

They want to remove her from the respirator and let her die.

Judge Robert Muir Jr., 43, who describes himself as "an ordinary human being with ordinary thoughts and emotions," now must decide whether Karen can be allowed to "die in dignity," as her adoptive parents have asked.

He said Monday he expected to rule in the case within 10 days to two weeks.

Prisoners Released

ATLANTA (UPI) — "They just came and got me," said Darryl Coleman, who was serving his final year on a three-year sentence for burglary. "I just couldn't believe it."

Coleman, an inmate at the Georgia Industrial Institute at Alto, was one of 340 Georgia prison inmates released Monday under an order by the state Pardons and Parole Board cutting one year off the sentences of nonviolent offenders to relieve severe overcrowding in the state's prisons.

Unlike many of the mostly young inmates passing through the Greyhound Bus Station on their way home, Coleman said he had a job awaiting him.

"I'm a welder, I start work tomorrow with the Atlanta transit system," said Coleman, who learned welding while in prison.

Jerry Garrett, 25, of Rome, Ga. was like many of the freed inmates — he will have to go job hunting.

"I'll do anything — except burglary," he said. "I'm out of that business now."

KINGSTON

"They have to get on that truck once in awhile," Jerry Narducci, moderator of last night's mayoral debate on the Kingston Fire Department, was talking about the ancient attraction of firemanics: the call to service.

Some of the volunteers in Kingston say they aren't being called anymore and that's the problem.

The problems of the volunteers versus the paid department — collectively known as "the Kingston Fire Department" but often at odds during the last three years or so — were given a thorough airing at the J. Watson Bailey Junior High School

REX STOUT

Author Dead

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI) — "I was a storyteller," author Rex Stout once told an interviewer. "I was not a great writer." Stout created the rotund detective character Nero Wolfe in 1934, and wrote 46 Wolfe mysteries that sold 45 million copies in 22 languages.

Stout died Monday. He was 88. His daughter, Barbara Selleck, said he died at Highmeadow, the house he built 45 years ago on 58 acres of hillside straddling the Connecticut-New York State border.

Stout, who was also responsible for setting up the school banking system in 400 cities throughout the country, was nothing like his fictional detective.

Wolfe hates exercise and has a hot temper; Stout was agile and affable. Wolfe likes gourmet cooking and insists on it; Stout, too, liked good food, but wouldn't refuse a hot dog.

Stout began his last work on a chilly afternoon in mid-November 1974.

"I never write in the summer," said Stout. "I'll start one on November 19th at 4 o'clock. It'll probably be finished the middle of January. Come out in the middle of June, something like that. Provided I'm alive — I could die, good God, I'm 87 years old. In fact, if I didn't want more than my share, I'd have died quite a while ago."

His last book, another Wolfe mystery, "A Family Affair," was published last month.

debate between Mayor Francis R. Koenig (Democratic incumbent) William K. Darling (Republican) and Bernard Singer (Conservative). About 30 persons attended.

Koenig initially let it be known that he would be unable to attend due to a previous commitment. Koenig was able to rearrange his schedule to permit a brief—about two minutes—address after which he turned it over to his running mate, Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo for the question and answer period. Koenig's previous commitment? A contract negotiating session with the paid fire department at City Hall.

Koenig, in his address, noted that his administration had "zealously safeguarded" the fire protection of the residents. He noted the new equipment purchased since he took office almost six years ago (upwards of $400,000 worth) and finished by stating, "As long as I'm mayor there will be one fire department made up of paid men and volunteers working as a cohesive unit."

That statement failed to prevent criticism from Koenig's two opponents, who both charged him with lack of leadership for allowing the divisions between paid and vols to reach the point of open warfare. "Controversy has no part in the safety of the city," Darling declared. Singer spoke along the same lines, stating that Koenig could have alleviated much of the controversy by acting as mediator.

The volunteers, however, were interested in specific proposals to solve some of their problems.

They pictured themselves as under almost constant attack from the paid men and their union, aided and abetted by City Hall. They say that under a new system instituted by former Chief Robert Maines two years ago, the volunteers are not called out on first alarms. "We have great difficulty with communications down there," said Charles Reese of Wiltwyck Hose No. 1. "We can't get equipment fixed. Everything down there is operated according to the rules of the firemen's union."

Narducci noted that training of the volunteers was inadequate and that they weren't called to participate in the recent "Mock disaster" training at Benedictine Hospital where other emergency agencies were called out.

There was a call for a deputy fire chief for volunteer firemanics, but what the volunteers really want is a friend at City Hall. "In any community where you have a strong volunteer fire force, you have an administration behind it in an activist way," Narducci said.

Happy 89th to a Grand Lady

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Statue of Liberty is 89 years old today.

The last rivet was driven into the statue, celebrated in Emma Lazarus' poem, on Oct. 28, 1886. The lady with her lamp held high has greeted the millions entering New York Harbor ever since.

Miss Liberty, 151 feet and one-inch tall, designed by Alsatian sculptor Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, as usual had a birthday party.

Music, speeches, color guards and flags were part of the celebration on Liberty Island today. The occasion was marked by the Auxiliary of the National Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Betty Butler has been a regular at these ceremonies every year for 15 years now.

"I'm just as thrilled today when I see the statue as I was 15 years ago," said Mrs. Butler, past president of the Auxiliary, who said she has seen many of the world's famous sights.

"They don't have anything to compare to our freedoms symbolized by Miss Liberty," she said of the 450,000-pound statue that arrived in 214 packing crates on the steamship Isere from Rouen, France, in June of 1885.

The VFW Auxiliary has been handling the annual ceremonies for 39 years. It always brings a gift. This year it was four interior flag poles with gold bases and ornaments for display of the American flag. Miss Liberty herself was a gift.

French historian Edouard de LaBoulaye got the idea of commemorating the Revolutionary War alliance between France and the United States shortly after the end of the American Civil War.

Bartholdi began the work in 1874, and eleven years shipped the finished statue to New York to be erected entirely with private funds.

The VFW Auxiliary mustered 2,000 members and Junior Girls from 13 eastern states for today's ceremony.

Dean Garrett, 37, chief of visitor services at Liberty Island, said a million persons take the ferry ride to the island to get a close look and climb the 168 steps inside the statue itself.

The portion above Miss Liberty's crown has been closed off for several years and only personnel assigned to clean her lamp get higher than the observation platform in the crown.

Middleman's Share Drops in Food Prices

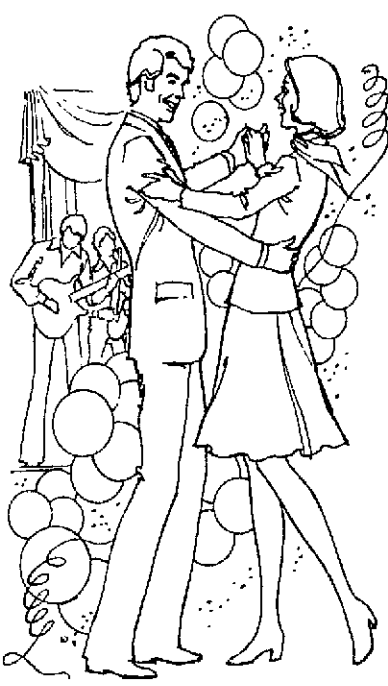

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The middleman's share of the consumer's dollar for a market basket of food decreased 3.2 cents in August to the lowest level for the year, the Agriculture Department says. The farm-retail spread, which covers the costs for assembling, processing, transporting and distributing the market basket of foods, dropped 2.8 per cent from August to September. But the farm-retail spread in September still was 3.4 per cent wider than in September, 1974. The sharpest spread decreases came for beef, pork, fresh fruits and vegetables. Moderate decreases also were recorded for poultry, eggs and processed fruits and vegetables.

THINK PEOPLE . . . NOT POLITICS!
Silence Is Golden
Have you ever been in a spot where you talked too much and lost an argument? We all have at one time or another, unless we want to hide something. Mr. Koenig is playing that game with our City business.
For example:
I have asked him about the plan for the dump. Silence. I have raised the question about the swimming pool. Silence. I have asked about City Hall being saved, the lack of buses, the desert downtown, the overstaffed City Hall payroll. His answer is SILENCE.
Let's try another one.

Bernie Singer
For Mayor

Why is it that a $20,000 house in the Town of Ulster pays $120 less in taxes than the same house in Kingston? Is it because Mr. Koenig did not go to Albany to fight for a lower assessment for Kingston? I will agree that Mr. Koenig did not raise our general land tax but neither did he get us a lower assessment. The tax that hurts the most is the sales tax. Seven percent in Kingston. Add that to your general tax and someone is taking a big bite out of your pay check.
If we don't start to save now, we will soon be paying 10% sales tax and most certainly our general tax will increase. Inflation is going to be with us for a while so the only logical solution is to cut spending. There is no other way.

How do I propose to do this? By putting all our purchases to bid I will get the lowest cost, consistent with good work. I will want more productivity from City Employees.
I herewith put the department heads of the City on notice. Start preparing a time study of employees in your department because when I become Mayor it will be my first order of business and I will not wait six years for it. It can be done and it will not result in wholesale layoffs.

Lions Screening Test

Amy Keller gives a blood sample to Mrs. Amy Chmura to find out if she has diabetes. It was all part of the recent third annual screening program put on by the Town of Ulster Lions and Lionesses at Chambers School, at which Town of Ulster residents were tested for glaucoma, impaired hearing and diabetes. Preschool children were also tested for amblyopia (lazy eye) as part of the program. Lions Clubs recently conducted their "White Cane Week" solicitation of funds which helps support screening programs which tested 17,946 persons through 76 Lions Club clinics last year. (Freeman photo)

Singer Wants State Board Probe

KINGSTON Conservative candidate for mayor, Bernard Singer wants the State Board of Elections to investigate irregularities in election results in the 11th Ward during the Conservative primary for alderman-at-large.

The case was heard in Supreme Court last month which declared Roberta Kolts the winner over T. Robert Gallo with Judge Harold Hughes stating there was no evidence of fraud.

What Singer wants explained is how tally sheets got switched between the time they were recorded Sept. 10 and announced officially two days later. The state says he has no case.

He wrote the State Board of Elections, which on Oct. 20 wrote back "Justice Hughes noted that there was no evidence that either party or the election officials were guilty of any fraudulent practice or willful misconduct. The state board of elections does not feel it would be proper to undertake an investigation as to an issue considered resolved by the supreme court," wrote Donald J. McCarthy Jr., counsel to the state board.

Singer writes McCarthy on Oct. 24 that the case should be reopened, due largely to the fact that "all the facts were not brought to the attention of Justice Hughes when the matter came before the court." Hughes used the expression "inexplicable" in reference to the tally sheet part of the case. Singer said he had asked his attorney, Peter C. Graham to make a strong issue of the tally sheet part of the case "but for reasons of his own he did not do so. Repeated requests that he make this a strong issue failed to get responsive action," wrote Singer to McCarthy.

"Both Mrs. Anne M. Smythe and Mrs. Alice C. Molloy, two of the people engaged to conduct the polls for the election district in question, feel certain that irregularities took place that demand an investigation," Singer said. He enclosed letters from the two election inspectors.

The matter is now under investigation by District Attorney Francis J. Vogt. "Our local district attorney's office acknowledges the fact that the election procedure was conducted in a 'very loose manner' and that 'almost anything could have happened,'" Singer wrote.

Mrs. Smythe, in her letter to McCarthy, states unequivocally that there was a switch. After T. Robert Gallo was announced as the winner, Mrs. Smythe said she examined the tally sheets.

"When I later examined the tally sheet I noticed that this was not the one I had filled out or turned in" (primary night). "My mark was not on the sheet. I would very much like to have this fact put on record."

'Not Another Spokesman'

KINGSTON Republican Mayoral Candidate William K. Darling has called on Mayor Francis R. Koenig "not a spokesman" to explain the proposed spending of $350,000 to renovate the municipal auditorium on Broadway.

Darling attacked Koenig on Sunday on his plans to spend Community Development funds on the auditorium and was answered by City Clerk Louis F. DeCicco who is the city official charged with booking events into the arena.

Said Darling, "We have had enough of the mayor hiding behind the cloak of employees or spokesmen—we would all like to know what he has to say about the issues! We ask the mayor to tell us about the law suit against his spending of $350,000 for renovation of the Auditorium instituted by the Ulster County Community Action Committee."

"I say and the facts will bear me out—the earmarking of federal funds for renovation of the municipal auditorium is nothing more than a last ditch stand to pigeon hole funds. In other words, here it is folks—we have $350,000—not our money, but 'taxpayers' money'. Let's use it fast before we lost it! So in a quick grandstand play—with little or no planning cost estimates, architectural ideas, parking, etc., the mayor decides that we can 'stick the money in the old municipal auditorium,'" Darling declared.

"The mayor's 'spokesman', in response to my Sunday release on the municipal auditorium, brought up the issue of usage stating that to date this year the auditorium has been used 284 days excluding various holidays and Sundays. By simple arithmetic, excluding 43 Sundays and 7 holidays, there are, in fact, only 250 days to date. This attempt at clouding the real issue by a pawn for the mayor is clearly deceptive. It is obvious that the mayor's intent is to push this extravagant renovation of the auditorium through much like he did with the non-existent swimming pool at Dietz Stadium," Darling declared.

AREA NEWS TODAY

Sportsmen Plan Council Boycott

KINGSTON The Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County has announced that its members will boycott Wednesday's meeting of the Ulster County Environmental Management Council, which will feature a film and discussion on the pros and cons of hunting.

"There is no reason the Federation has to defend the right to hunt and fish," said Federation President Frederick G. Faerber III, "as long as the sportsmen spend between 13 and 14 million dollars a year for hunting and fishing licenses in New York State."

The film that will be shown at Wednesday's meeting is titled, "A Question of Hunting," and considers the related issues of hunting, conservation, preservation, game management, ecology, environment, emotionalism and anti-hunting sentiments.

In addition to Federation members, representatives of the Department of Environmental Conservation and the Ulster County SPCA have been invited to attend Wednesday's session.

Faerber, in a statement released today, said it is the responsibility of the DEC, not the hunters and sportsmen, to defend the sport and its participants.

The Federation president added, "Mr. Donald C. Bruyn, Chairman of the Environmental Management Council, really should be working in more important areas, such as finding a proper landfill for towns and villages like Rosendale or land use planning areas in Ulster County or pollution of the Rondout Creek by large companies."

"The Federation can handle the question of hunting or fishing with no help from Mr. Bruyn."

Wednesday's session is open to the public and will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Surrogate Court Room on the third floor of the Ulster County Office Building. The film lasts approximately 30 minutes. A discussion will follow.

Law Firm Answers Candidate

KINGSTON The Kingston legal firm of Napolitano, Kelly and Saccoman has released contents of a letter to Robert Stedje, Conservative candidate for Town of Ulster supervisor.

"We are greatly concerned over the article in the Oct. 22 Daily Freeman," the firm told Stedje. "The statements in it are completely misleading. Since we have the highest regard for your integrity, we know you will want to set the situation straight."

"The claim in question is not that of Carmine Sabino but of his mother, Lucia. The property was purchased by Rocco Sabino in 1940 and left to his wife. Incidentally, our office has represented the Sabinos since the property was purchased. We are not and have not at no time been the attorneys for Carmine Sabino."

"Our particular concern is that the newspaper item will prejudice the rights of our client in connection with her claim. As you are well aware, private property cannot be taken for public use without just compensation. The whole issue here is to secure just compensation for Lucia Sabino for the property taken by the sewer district."

"The district filed a petition in county court to secure title to the property, including one developed lot, a portion of a second developed lot and a portion of a third lot available for future development. These lots currently are selling for $6,000 each.

"In addition, for running a trunk line for the sewer, there has been appropriated a 30-foot easement of about 1,800 feet."

"A commission was named to determine the compensation. After a preliminary hearing, there was discussion of a possible adjustment, first between the respective attorneys, and later with the town board. Carmine Sabino not only abstained from voting but completely absented himself from the meetings."

"The $27,000 figure submitted is most conservative, and when the claim is presented, proof will show that damages are substantially more. The board decided on a further appraisal, resulting in the one by Mr. (Walter) Donnaruma."

"It is hardly necessary to point out that his appraisal is completely unrealistic. The $4,700 is actually less than the value of one lot taken almost in its entirety."

"The statement that the property is benefited by the sewer line is a matter the commissioners will have to decide. There are various limitations on the question of possible benefits."

"You must be aware that this is not the only appropriation before the commissioners. There has already been one decision to award $12,000 with interest on an appropriation of 501 feet. If this is compared to the taking of our client's property you will appreciate that our proposal was most conservative."

Since the matter has been published in the local press, you will appreciate that for the protection of our client copies of this letter must also be distributed to the media."

"If you have any further question about the matter, we shall appreciate your discussing it with us before any further public statements are made."

ERA
CHAOS OR HARMONY

"I can assure you that the effects on our state, contrary to predictions of mass confusion and legal chaos, have been positive and orderly. Subsequent to the adoption of our Equal Rights Amendment in 1972, Washington statutes were reviewed and changes were recommended to the legislature harmonizing our laws with it. In the short course of one year the changes were passed by the legislature in a smooth, methodical fashion... Washington now has one set of laws applying to both men and women, and public reaction has been overwhelmingly favorable." Daniel J. Evans, Gov. of the State of Washington.

Spada for Reelection

This year's race for Ulster County Clerk has incumbent Republican Albert Spada opposing Democrat Lewis C. Kirschner and Conservative William Hegeman.

The Freeman unequivocally endorses Spada for a fourth three-year term.

Kirschner, who declined to run again for the County Legislature after six years on that board, has based his campaign on Spada's "dual role" as County Clerk and chairman of the County Republican committee.

Kirschner suggests that Spada's "dual role" might have been indirectly responsible for the $13,000 in checks and cash receipts stolen from a Motor Vehicles Bureau safe last spring, a crime still unsolved.

Spada claims the "dual role" argument has been dredged up by political opponents since 1969, the year he was elected GOP chairman.

He disavows any personal liability in the Motor Vehicle theft and states the matter is still under investigation by state police officials.

Kirschner has also been critical of Spada over hiring practices. The Democratic challenger charges that Spada has retained a strong power base because he has used his influence as party chairman to obtain jobs for relatives and/or friends, whether or not they are qualified.

The Freeman feels that despite the charges made against Spada, he has conducted the operation of this most important office in a professional manner, has hired a staff of experts in the motor vehicle department and should be returned for three more years.

Improvements made in the county registrar's office, including the use of advance microfilming techniques to record deeds, mortgages and other vital papers have been done under Spada's supervision.

In his nine years as County Clerk, Spada has been in charge of an operation that has increased more than three times in gross business. The staff, however, has been increased from 11 to only 18 people.

Kirschner, who during his three terms as member of the County Legislator, from the Esopus-Rosendale district, was one of the vocal critics of the Republican party, has waged a strenuous campaign. His candidacy is in sharp contrast to the county Democrats three years ago, when they didn't even bother to nominate a candidate against the GOP's top vote-getter.

Hegeman, the third candidate in this year's race, is not actively campaigning. His nomination was challenged by the Conservatives and he claims this challenge cut into his campaign time. Hegeman has offered no program and did not participate in the series of debates waged by Spada and Kirschner.

Yes on Two Amendments

If Amendments No. 2 and 3 are approved, a massive job of court reform would begin in the state. No. 2 would establish a permanent Commission on Judicial Conduct and No. 3 would create a chief administrator of courts in the state and a unified judicial budget.

The Freeman supports these amendments.

"Operator, what's the number for 'Dial-a-Conspiracy'?"

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten
WASHINGTON—The late J. Edgar Hoover, in his zeal to protect his beloved FBI, engineered a coverup 12 years ago to keep the Warren Commission from learning about the ties between FBI agent James Hosty and assassin Lee Harvey Oswald.

The formidable Hoover, whose bulldog visage had become a national symbol of law and order, intervened personally when the Warren Commission began to zero in on Hosty.

Now, 12 years later, Hosty has admitted destroying a threatening note, which Oswald delivered to the FBI office in

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hoover's Coverup Of the FBI

Dallas a few days before shooting President John F. Kennedy. The note threatened to blow up the FBI office and Dallas police headquarters if Hosty didn't stop bothering his wife.

The FBI should have notified the Secret Service that Oswald, a misfit who had threatened violence, was in the Dallas area. The Secret Service routinely would have checked his whereabouts during the presidential visit. This might have saved President Kennedy's life.

When the FBI learned that a suspect named Lee Harvey Oswald had been picked up, Hosty reminded his boss, Gordon Shanklin, that he had been handling the Oswald case, Shanklin telephoned the Dallas police and asked whether Hosty could participate in the interrogation.

Hosty later questioned Oswald at police headquarters. Oswald, who had been outwardly calm, suddenly became agitated. "I know you!" he shouted. "I know you! You're the one who accosted my wife twice!"

The incident passed, however, without any mention of the threatening letter. Hosty also confided to a friend on the Dallas police force, Lt. Jack Revill, that the FBI had a file on Oswald. Revill repeated the conversation to a superior who ordered him to put it in writing.

Special Agent Hosty related to this officer..." wrote Revill, "that the Federal Bureau of Investigation was aware of the subject (Oswald) and that they had information that this subject was capable of committing the assassination of President Kennedy."

Hoover was furious when he learned of Hosty's loose talk. According to confidential notes taken at the time, the grizzled FBI chief complained that Hosty had "diarrhea of words." But the old man, nevertheless, sought to cover up the FBI's embarrassment.

On December 23, 1963, the FBI gave the Warren Commission a summary of Oswald's notebook. The summary conveniently omitted the fact that Hosty's name, telephone and license tag had been in the notebook.

The commission found out about the omission and demanded an explanation. On Jan. 27, 1964, Hoover acknowledged that Hosty's name had been in the notebook.

The G-man also gave what purported to be a full account of the FBI's contacts with Oswald. The last contact, he reported, had been on Aug. 10, 1963. "We did not interview Oswald in Dallas, Texas, or in Irving, Texas, prior to the assassination of President Kennedy," Hoover added.

Interestingly, he used the word "our" to describe the last contact with the FBI. But on February 6, in a sworn affidavit, Hoover changed the wording in a curious way. He swore that Oswald had no contact with FBI "agents" after August 10, 1963.

It is now known, of course, that Oswald appeared at the FBI office in Dallas only a few days before the assassination. At that time, just as Hoover said, he did not speak with any FBI "agents." But he spoke with an FBI receptionist, who passed on his threatening note to the agents.

It is impossible to know whether the late FBI chief subtly switched the word "our" to "agents" in order to hide his knowledge of Oswald's violent threat.

But in a later letter to the Warren Commission, dated April 6, 1964, Hoover stated categorically: "I wish to emphasize that the facts available to the FBI concerning Lee Harvey Oswald prior to the assassination did not indicate in any way that he was or would be a threat to President Kennedy."

The truth is, of course, that the FBI had received dramatic evidence less than a week before the assassination that Oswald was violence-prone.

On April 24, the Dallas Morning News reported Hosty had told the Dallas police lieutenant, Jack Revill, that the FBI knew Oswald was "capable" of assassinating the President.

Hoover immediately sent word to the Warren Commission that the story was "false" and followed up three days later with a personal letter delivered by courier.

Special Agent Hosty unequivocally denies ever having made the statement as quoted in this article..." declared the FBI director.

"Special Agent Hosty points out that prior to the assassination of President John Fitzgerald Kennedy, he never had any information indicating potential violence on the part of Lee Harvey Oswald."

There's more to Hoover's great coverup which we'll report in a future column.

Nearing 50 . . . Just Call Me Bill

By William F. Buckley

Very soon I will be 50, a datum I do not expect will rouse the statisticians or revive the fireworks industry. Fifty, and left with a problem that keeps . . . changing, as you grow older. It is, of course, the first name problem.

My inclinations on the matter have always been formal. In part this was a matter of inheritance. I grew up mistering people, and discovered, after I was fully grown (if indeed that has yet really happened) that in continuing to do so, I was bucking a trend of sorts: the obsessive egalitarian familiarity which approaches a raid on one's privacy.

So on reaching 30, I made a determined effort to resist. Even now, on the television program Firing Line, I refer even to those guests I know intimately as "Mr. Burnham," or "Governor Reagan," or "Senator Goldwater." (This rule I simply had to break on introducing Senator Buckley, but the departure from the habit was stylistically troublesome.) The effort, I thought, was worthwhile—a small gesture against the convention that required you to refer to Professor Mortimer Applegate as "Mort" five minutes after you have met. Jack Paar would have called Socrates "Soc."

I came on two difficulties. The first was the public situation in which mistering somebody was plainly misunderstood. Or, if understood at all, taken as an act of social condescension. For a couple of years I would refer, on his program, to "Mr. Carson." In due course I discovered that the audience thought I was trying to put on an act: Mr. Carson does not exist in America. Only Johnny does.

The second problem, as one grows older, lies in the creeping suspicion of people a little older than oneself that your use of the surname is intended to accentuate an exiguous age difference. If you are 18 and the other man is 28, you can, for a while, call him Mr. Jones without giving offense. But if you are 40 and he is 50 and you call him Mr. Jones, he is likely to think that you are rubbing in the fact of his relative senescence.

The complement of that problem, which I fear more than anything except rattlesnakes and detente, is trying to be One of the Boys. "Just call me Bill," to the roommate of your son at college, is in my judgment an odious effort to efface a chronological interval as palpable as the wrinkles on my face, and the maturity of my judgment.

On the other hand, one has to struggle to avoid stiffness: so I arrived, for a while, at the understanding that I was Mister to everyone under the age of 21, or thereabouts, and only then, cautiously, Bill. It is a sub-problem how to break the habit. Here I made a sub-rule: that I would invite younger people to call me "Bill" exactly one time. If thereafter they persisted in using the surname, well that was up to them: a second, redundant gesture on my part could be interpreted as pleading with them to accept me as an archeological equal.

My bias, on the whole, continued in the direction of a tendency to formality, so in the last few years I made a determined effort to overcome it, wherein I came across my most recent humiliation. Mrs. Margaret Thatcher was my guest on Firing Line. Rather to my surprise, the English being more naturally formal than we are, half way through the program she suddenly referred to me, once, as "Bill." I declined to break my Firing Line Rule, and so persisted with "Mrs. Thatcher." However, the next day when we met again at a semi-social function, I braced myself on leaving and said, "good-bye, Margaret." And, a week later writing her a note congratulating her on her performance, I addressed it: "Dear Margaret."

Today I have from her a most pleasant reply, about this & that. But it is addressed, in her own hand (as is the British habit: only the text is typed): "Dear Mr. Buckley." Shocked, I looked back at the transcript — only to discover that, on the program, she was talking about a "Bill" that lay before the House of Commons. The trauma has set me back by years, and I may even find myself addressing "Mr. Carson" next time around.

I suppose, though, that at 50, the problem becomes easier in respect of the 25-year-olds. At 70, it will be easier still. Well before then, I hope to be able to address Margaret, I mean Mrs. Thatcher, as Madame Prime Minister.

Great Banker Robbery in New York City

WASHINGTON—The Lords of Financial Creation arrived at the New Senate Office Building in a string of limousines. Ellmore C. Patterson of Morgan Guaranty Trust, David Rockefeller of the Chase Manhattan, Walter Wriston of First National City Bank and A. W. Clausen of the Bank of America. The chairman of the Banking Committee, Sen. William Proxmire, estimated that between them they controlled $250 billion.

Protocol required Abe Beame to speak first. To prop up this homunculus of a mayor who has lost all the functions of his office save the ceremonial ones, he had Moon Landrieu, the mayor of New Orleans, on one side and Kenneth Axelson, the vice president of J. C. Penney, on the other. Axelson is the financial viceroy who has been installed as deputy mayor of New York by the banker coup d'etat to run the city.

The little mayor confessed his humiliation. He told how he'd squeezed his people to pay the bankers, how he'd upped the price of everything from subway fares to marriage licenses, how he'd given away the powers of the office the voters had conferred on him, and how neither he nor his people had anything left to give but still the bankers wanted more.

He didn't know how much more, but New York needed a lot more so he could pay off the bankers which would then enable him to go back to the bankers and borrow more. Yes, he said, he wants the Federal loan guarantee so he can go back and do it again. To make his case he spoke about "sugar mills in Brazil" and "locomotives in Mexico" and then asked, "Would the French abandon Paris?"

But neither he nor Moon Landrieu, there in his capacity as head of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, could supply a convincing set of reasons why the City should not be allowed to go into default. Services will be cut more drastically, more people will be thrown off the payroll if the City doesn't default than if it does.

Ignoring that, New York's own Sen. Jacob Javits reversed the facts and resorted to blackmail. In case of default, he suggested, the City would have to cut its welfare payments so that the recipients would move to Albuquerque, N.M. Proxmire felicitated the two mayors on their presentations and told them if they were nominated at the Democratic convention next year, the Party would have a "Moon-Beame ticket."

It was that sort of lunatic day. People pleading for billions of dollars with nobody able to say exactly how much or why. The head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Comptroller of the Currency and the vice-chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, all of them testified that by every measurement they knew a default by New York City would have a seriously adverse effect on fewer than 50 small banks scattered around the country and, with a little help, they would probably get through.

The Lords of Financial Creation got to the hearing room at 10 in the morning, but they didn't get on stage until two-thirty in the afternoon. No matter who you are, you have to stand in line and wait when you're asking for a handout.

The delay gave us a chance to study them, and it's true, bankers do wear stripes. David Rockefeller didn't though. He was in an almost scruffy brown suit which, somebody said, he paid a public relations man $200,000 a year to advise him to wear. Age has begun to give this symbol of plutocracy a pronounced stoop shoulder and that with his reedy voice, bony features and habit of cocking his head to one side makes him look like a whining, ingratiating, countinghouse miser. Shades of his grandfather, but the Rockefeller name does intimidate. We had him there for hours, and I didn't see one of us newbies dare to go over and ask him the questions we should have.

The senators asked some good questions, though, for which the bankers had but limp answers. They contradicted the Littlest Mayor and said the Federal money should be used not to make New York City bonds salable but to clear them off the market entirely. On the question of default, they not only admitted the prophecies of disaster were highly speculative, but several also conceded they didn't believe the much-predicted catastrophe would occur. No one volunteered to explain who'd gotten to the Chancellor of West Germany and some of the others who've issued statements whipping this hysteria up.

On the question of why they had facilitated billions worth of bad loans to the City, Wriston of Citibank, said, "We guessed wrong." And Patterson of Morgan excused his poor business judgment by saying, "The whole system was designed so that nobody could find out." In other words the Littlest Mayor tricked 'em. Abe, the petit shlepper of public administration, this simple tool had outwitted them.

For those who find the bankers' explanation a trifle disingenuous, there are more plausible theories as to what's going on: The bankers' aren't fighting for their lives, but for their profits, and because they fear default may cause others to sue them for their part in handling this bad paper.

Hence the suspicion grows that the Democrats are being set up for a monumental swindle. The script is as follows: When the New York City Ponzi game collapsed last fall, the bankers went to the White House for a bailout; the White House said impossible unless the public can be convinced this isn't welfare aid for the Rockefeller, after which came the campaign to trick the Democrats into believing the bailout is to save the economy and help the poor. The end of the script has Congress passing the bailout with Ford "reluctantly" signing it under terrible pressure from Nelson and the liberals.

If they do it, that's how they'll pull off The Great Banker Robbery.

Showboat Open Weekends in November

Neil Simon's Smash Comedy Hit 'The Odd Couple' to Start Saturday

Don't expect to have a "cool" time on the Showboat this Fall! The Driftwood has installed heating facilities in preparation for the opening of their latest production, Neil Simon's smash comedy hit, "The Odd Couple." "The Odd Couple" marks a departure from the "old time" comedies and melodramas usually featured on the Driftwood. It opened in 1965 to rave reviews and, as a film, broke all records at Radio City and later became the popular TV series. "We thought it would be a good change of pace," said Captain Ed Furbush, "and it's always been one of my favorite shows. My original idea was for the Showboat to be a year round operation. What we'd like to do is run two seasons of stock, offering audiences not only our traditional Showboat fare, but a full season of winter stock with some new faces and more recent plays."

A brand new cast is being rehearsed in New York City for the Nov. 1st opening which will be running Saturdays and Sundays through November. The actors are making a weekly trek on Friday nights in order to rehearse on the stage at least once a week. "It's hectic rehearsing at night and traveling back and forth with our busy New York schedule, but it's worth bringing some belly laughs from Broadway to Kingston, and I'd never miss the chance to do a good comic role in a Neil Simon play," said Frank Greco.

You can imagine the comedy resulting when two divorced men find it necessary to set up housekeeping together. George Olson, who plays the sloppy sportswriter, Oscar Madison, teams up with Cameron Schuyler, playing his irritating roommate, George Mason, who's starred in many fine plays such as "Man of La Mancha" and "Kismet." Cameron Schuyler is popular with the dinner theater circuit across the country and is known to Kingston audiences for the past two seasons for his many fine performances on the Showboat.

Judy Strawn and Shirley Furbush heighten the comedy in their appearances as the silly sisters from upstairs. Judy started her career as a dancer and at the age of 14 was doing a regular spot on a TV variety show. Although a mother, she has continued her career, switching from dancing to acting when cast as Hodel in "Fiddler on the Roof," in New York. Shirley, wife of Capt. Ed, is the daughter of a theater owner in Maine. She began her acting career as soon as she was able to toddle out on stage. Her family traveled with the vaudeville circuit doing a musical revue and by the time she was a young lady she and her sisters were a singing trio on the radio. Having taken time out to raise her family, she returns to please audiences here in Kingston or as Shirley says, "to do her kooky thing again."

Rounding out the cast are Frank Greco, Frederick Hall, Capt. Ed Furbush and Bill La Voie as the comical poker players.

Veteran of stock and film, Mr. Greco has appeared in such well known movies as "Serpico" and "Godfather I and II" and was a hit as Nathan Detroit in the National Touring Company of "Guys and Dolls."

Fred Hall began his career at 17 and became a permanent member for 10 years with the well known Cooperstown Playhouse. A multi-talented man, he was also stage designer for the famous night club entertainer Dorothy Shay, the Park Avenue hillbilly.

Who has more right to perform on a showboat than Capt. Ed Furbush who spent many years as leading man on the Goldenrod, bringing laughter and entertainment to audiences up and down the Mississippi?

As guest artist with this cast of New York players is Bill La Voie, master of the comic turn. He is well known to audiences for his many heartwarming performances with the Coach House Players.

Miss Dentler, the producer who usually adjourns to sunny Florida about this time of year, has stayed on to lend her apt professional hand to this production.

Reservations may be obtained at the box office which will be open Tuesdays through Sundays after 1 p.m. The Sunday, Nov. 2 performance has been sold out to the 4-H club supervisors for their annual get-together.

Heating facilities installed in preparation for fall season.

YOUNGSTERS AT THE 'CHILDREN'S HOUSE'

Montessori . . . 'A System of Education Where Love and Learning Come Together'

Montessori: What is it?

Montessori has been described as a system of education where love and learning come together based on the child's mental and physical needs for freedom within a specific structure.

And a spokesman for the Children's House in Saugerties, a bilingual Montessori School, says further:

Most importantly, the Montessori method considers the needs and interests of each child individually. The prepared environment is set up in such a way as to encourage joy of learning.

This method of education was created by Dr. Maria Montessori, the first woman to graduate from the University of Rome Medical School. She became interested in education and was invited to start her first school, 'The Children's House,' in Rome.

She pioneered this new approach in educating children—a philosophy based on the growth of the children and her specific educational materials. And today there are thousands of Montessori schools throughout the world with about 2,000 supported in the U.S. by parents who would like to give their children an education superior to that of a regular nursery or kindergarten.

Self knowledge, self discipline and independence as well as enthusiasm for learning are the trademarks of children enrolled in the Montessori schools.

And a spokesman for the Saugerties Children's House points out that instead of playing with toys these children learn the skills needed to dress and undress, washing, pouring without spilling, dusting and scrubbing furniture, peel vegetables, fold fabrics and many others.

Another drastic change from the traditional school is that children are not separated into age groups in a Montessori school; some children choosing to work individually while others group together by twos, threes or more.

Much more goes into the makeup of the Montessori schools—with various parallel activities providing a variety but at no time is there pressure or competition among children.

Interested parents in the Saugerties school are invited to visit the school located at 100 Market Street or by calling the school.

To Sell or Not To Sell When the Kids Leave

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A couple whose youngest child left for college asked your readers to help them decide whether or not to sell their big home.

I say, sell while you can still get your price! We didn't. We kept waiting for our kids to come home for a visit. It was always the same story: "Too busy. Maybe next year."

The one in college chose to spend Christmas with her boyfriend's family!

We finally wised up and sold it for what we could get.

POOR TIMING
IN WISCONSIN

DEAR ABBY: Sell now! It's better to move to a strange place where you know no one while you are together. I suggest a retirement community where all others have been uprooted and are eager to make new friends. Choose a place where each of you can pursue new interests and hobbies and prepare for that day when one of you must carry on alone.

cheek to cheek, then come home if you want to. And never let your children use you as a free babysitting service or place to go for a free vacation.

OREGONIANS WHO DID IT

DEAR ABBY: Sell the house and get into something cheaper and easier to care for. If the kids come, put them up in a nearby motel. Even if you have to pay for it, it's still cheaper, and they won't stay as long.

CANADIANS

DEAR ABBY: I've worked with college students for 15 years, and I would advise parents not to sell their homes until their youngest is through college. Until that time, children desperately need a home to come back to, and it should be there whether or not it's made use of.

SANTA BARBARA

DEAR ABBY: Hang on to your home even though your children are gone. We have six grandchildren who come to visit us the day school lets out, and they stay all summer. If we had sold our big, five-bedroom home and moved into a small apartment, we'd have missed some wonderful dividends.

THE G'S IN GA.

DEAR ABBY: Would you like to hear what our parents did after their kids left home? They sold their big house and now they visit each one of their six married children for two months every year. They said, "We took care of you; now you can take care of us!"

THE KIDS

DEAR ABBY: I don't think those people should sell their big house. If they were to move into a little apartment and their children and grandchildren wanted to spend Christmas or Thanksgiving with them, where would they put them? Where?

GRANDCHILD
IN VA.

DEAR ABBY: Don't sell the house. If you think you'll be happier in an apartment, rent the house for a year and try living in an apartment. If you like it, then sell the house. Otherwise, you've still got your house.

Some of our friends sold their homes and were sorry a year later.

Local Man Is Killed

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Michael S. Bond, a senior at Ithaca College and a starting defensive back on the school's undefeated football team, was killed Monday in a car crash in the nearby town of Lansing, authorities said.

Tompkins County sheriff's deputies said Bond's small foreign car slammed head-on into a dump truck while attempting to pass another car on Route 34.

Bond, 21, of Saugerties, was pronounced dead at the scene. Deputies said the truck driver was not hurt.

Bond had been a starting cornerback for the past two seasons.

Coach Jim Butterfield expressed "a deep sense of sorrow" at the loss of "a member of our football family."

A dinner in Slover's honor will be held at the Kingston Moose Lodge, 82 Prince Street, on Saturday, Nov. 1, at 7 p.m. Frank Stauble, past governor of the Kingston Moose Lodge No. 970 has announced.

A past president of the Kingston Patrolman's Association, Slover has completed more than 1,500 hours of training in police schools and seminars. He is a member of the Ulster County Police Chief's Association.

A member of Kingston Masonic Lodge No. 10, Slover is also chairman of the Kingston Indians Drum & Bugle Corps. Slover is a Kingston High School graduate and served in the U.S. Navy for three years in World War II. He is married and is the father of four children.

Irate Consumers Plan Meeting

Reservations for the dinner can be made through any Moose member.

Slover, a 22-year veteran of the Kingston Police Department, joined the department in 1953. He rose to the rank of detective in 1959.

In January of 1969 Slover was appointed sergeant and later that year rose to the rank of detective sergeant.

Slover was appointed acting deputy police chief in 1973 and six months later received permanent appointment to that position, which he currently holds.

During his years of service with the Kingston Police Department, Slover has received three departmental awards, including the silver valor award, the silver merit award and the departmental service award.

Hinchey Favors 'Lifeline Concept'

SAUGERTIES Assembly Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st), addressing himself to the problem of rising utility bills in the face of (sometimes) decreasing use, announced his support today for the "lifeline" concept of charging for utility costs which he says "would provide each residential customer with a monthly minimum basic allotment of electricity at an affordable cost."

Hinchey argues that the method of allocating costs by the utilities, devised half a century ago, discriminates against the small user to the benefit of the larger users—the more you use the less you pay per unit—and also defeats the purpose of energy conservation.

"In New York State, a person using 1,000 kilowatt hours per month paid an average of three cents per kilowatt hour while a person using 100 kilowatt hours per month paid over six cents per kilowatt hour. Under that sort of a rate structure, the residential user is the victim of social injustice," Hinchey declared.

Under the lifeline concept, already in effect in California where it has saved consumers more than $100 million, units of power used above the minimum basic allowance (MBA) would be priced incrementally higher. "This would allow the utilities to recover the revenue lost in the MBA category in the higher use categories," Hinchey said.

"The last point is important," Hinchey continued. "When we saved power during the Arab embargo we were told by the utilities that conservation had led to revenue deficiencies which had to be recouped so they went to the Public Service Commission and got rate increases. Under lifeline as currently defined by the assembly research staff, these deficiencies would not occur and the utilities would have no justification for requesting higher rates as before," Hinchey said.

Thus, Hinchey concludes that the lifeline concept would also help the electric power industry stabilize its rate structure in the face of continually rising costs.

He noted that during the period from 1960 to 1969 there were only five rate increase

Local Layoffs Termed Rumor

SHOKAN Officials for the Catskill Division of the New York City Board of Water Supply say there's nothing official about reports of local layoffs although there are "lots of rumors."

The Freeman received a report over the weekend that the men working at the chlorination unit at Shokan would be laid off and their duties transferred to other parts of sections of the water system.

"It's a matter of conjecture," said Lyle Proper, Catskill Division engineer. "We've heard nothing specific although there's been lots of rumors." Proper said the Shokan chlorination operation employs nine persons. He said there has been a cutback in that operation but as yet no cutback in personnel.

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey (D-101st) said he has received reports that as many as 60 jobs could be lost in the upstate watershed as New York City cuts its payroll in order to narrow the gap between what it spends and what it takes in.

Hinchey said that he was successful several months ago in saving the job of one man, "but 40 to 60 people is an entirely different ballgame."

He said he has contacted assembly and senate leaders and Gov. Carey in an effort to maintain upstate employment.

"The city is really under the gun to come up with substantial budget cuts," Hinchey said.

Fran Wins at 'Beat the Clock'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fran Tarkenton merely was trying to beat the clock and his ploy turned into a game-winning touchdown pass which beat the Chicago Bears.

The veteran quarterback of the Minnesota Vikings called the play at the line instead of calling a huddle because he wanted to get off a play before the two-minute warning came from the officials. He was so successful, he caught the Bears with 10 men on the field and his pass sailed into a defenseless area with Jim Lash hauling in the ball for a 45-yard touchdown strike.

Tarkenton's throw gave the Vikings a 10-7 lead and though the Bears came within one point at 10-9 when they later caught Tarkenton in the end-zone for a safety, they never could get ahead and the Vikings racked up their sixth win without a loss by a 13-9 count.

"I called it at the line," Tarkenton said. "One man left to go out and in and the other right to go out and in. I looked to the right and there was nobody there so I threw it."

"Somebody was running off the field and I wanted to get in the play before the automatic time out. I was surprised. I didn't count on somebody not being there."

What happened, Bears' Coach Jack Pardee said, was an injury to defensive back Allan Ellis which neither the Bears nor officials saw.

"As a result, the officials did not stop the action to get the injured man off the field," Pardee said, "and we got our replacement on the field too late to get into position."

Lash said he went "10 yards out and in and somebody didn't show. When I saw that, I felt good. It was just like playing catch."

Lash was 15 yards beyond the Bears' defense when the ball floated into his hands. He could have crawled the rest of the way for the touchdown.

Vikings' Coach Bud Grant declared: "We made our mistake and gave a touchdown and then they gave it back to us. They did a heck of a job."

The Bears' only touchdown resulted from a Minnesota fumble by Chuck Foreman, which Craig Clemons recovered for the Bears on the Vikings' 16. On the third play, Mike Adamle ran 14 yards for the touchdown and a 7-0 Bears' lead, which provided almost a big enough lift to carry them to victory.

"We started moving the ball then," Bears' defensive captain Doug Buffone said, "and we almost got another one."

"They got one mistake on our part and got ahead and then they can hold you off. Tarkenton's real sharp. He knows his defenses and knows his game."

Two field goals by Fred Cox, of 52 and 46 yards, also were decisive.

"Cox got it up in the prevailing wind going one way," Grant said, "and it went through. I think 52 yards is as long as he's kicked this year, but he's nine-for-nine, the most consistent kicker in football."

Grant said he was unconcerned when the Bears pulled within a point on the safety because "we're still ahead. The pressure was on them, not on us, and that's the way we like it."

"I'm glad we're through playing them. The Bears are one play away from beating us and that's about as close as you can get. One play could be almost anything."

Buffone said the Bears also got a boost when they caught Tarkenton in the endzone.

"He's hard to get anyway," Buffone said. "He's unbelievable. In his scrambling it seems like he falls in a hole and there he is up and running. It's fantastic to get him down at all and it's a great job let alone getting two points. When we were one point behind and they've got to kick to us, we'd be in good field position and I thought we'd make our move then. But we didn't."

Pardee declared the wind was a major factor in the game, taking away the passing in alternate quarters.

"If you have to rely on going back and passing, and blocking and have that long protection holding up, you're going to be in trouble," he said. "I felt all we had to do is get one drive going running and we'd win the ball game anyway. If you get one going, it takes six or seven minutes and that's what we need."

"One fewer mistake could have won it for us. It was the best 60-minute game we've played," he said.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Bears and gave them a 1-5 record for the season compared to 6-0 for Minnesota, one of the two teams still undefeated in the National Football League.

Saints Fire North

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — John North, whose New Orleans Saints stumbled, fumbled and bobbled their way to five humiliating losses in six games, was fired as head coach Monday and replaced by director of pro personnel Ernie Heffeler.

Owner John Mecom Jr. informed North of the dismissal during a private meeting soon after Mecom arrived from Houston, his home. The firing took place one day after Los Angeles swamped the Saints, 38-14.

"I have respect for John North as a man and a coach, but things simply didn't work," Mecom said. "Coach North approached his job with tremendous vigor and energy and did succeed in some areas of player development. Unfortunately, these accomplishments weren't reflected in the league standings."

North was not available for comment.

Mecom said Heffeler would serve as an interim coach for the remainder of this season. He said the search for a permanent head coach to take over in 1976 would start immediately.

According to one report, Mecom was said to have asked a veteran NFL executive to help arrange a meeting with former Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian. Former Kansas City coach Hank Stram also was rumored as a possible replacement.

Heffeler, a former head coach at Boston College and member of the Saints' staff since 1973, will take over a team which has been unable to move the ball and has consistently given up easy points early in the game.

"He is fully aware that he will not be our head coach in 1976 when we will endeavor to obtain the services of the very best head coach who would be available to the New Orleans Saints," Mecom said. He said Heffeler would resume his duties as director of pro personnel next season.

North, the Saints' third head coach, took over late in the 1973 preseason, his first year with the club, when J.D. Roberts was fired. His clubs posted identical 5-9 records the last two seasons, but the only win this year was a one-point victory over the then-winless Green Bay Packers.

The Saints lost to Washington 41-3, Cincinnati 21-0, Atlanta 14-7, San Francisco 45-21 and the Rams 38-14.

The team's performance mystified North, who said after the Los Angeles loss. "We weren't ready. I don't know whether we have been this year."

North had been an assistant with the Detroit Lions for eight years before joining the Saints.

Georges Carpentier Is Dead at 81

PARIS, Oct. 28 (UPI) — Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight who belted Jack Dempsey into the ropes in their historic bout in 1921 but was knocked out two rounds later, died Monday night following a heart attack. He was 81.

Carpentier and the late Marcel Cerdan were the two most popular French boxers in history. Carpentier, like Dempsey, retired to open a restaurant club—in his case, near the Avenue des Champs-Élysées.

His daughter Jacqueline said, "He had showed no sign of being ill. In fact he seemed to be in marvelous health. He had spent a perfectly normal day. His death was unbelievably sudden."

Carpentier's death came at a time when his old friend and adversary, Dempsey, has himself been ailing in New York. In their July 2, 1921 fight in Jersey City, Carpentier was a year older than Dempsey and 26 pounds lighter.

Carpentier, the dapper "Orchid Man" who captured the hearts of society ladies and made fighters acceptable to the "400," faced Dempsey, the "Manassa Mauler," at Boyles Thirty Acres on July 2, 1921 in a masterful promotion job that drew over 90,000 spectators and boxing's first million dollar gate.

"I was convinced I could beat him," Carpentier once said. "I was sure I could knock out anybody who came at me, and I knew he'd come at me because he was a close-quarter fighter. I hit him on the chin with my hardest right in the second round. The punch staggered him, but the bell rang 20 seconds later."

"Jack came out fresh for the third round. He came out like a tiger. And he began hitting me with the hardest punches any human ever threw. Nobody ever could hit like Dempsey that day. And he was shaking off my punches as if I was patting him with my open hand. He was toughest man I ever saw. Well, he knocked me out in the fourth."

Carpentier broke his thumb with the punch that sent Dempsey glassy-eyed into the ropes and it was that that ended his hopes of winning the world title.

There was no transatlantic radio in those days but the news was cabled to Paris. It had been prearranged that a red rocket fired over the French capital would signal victory and a green rocket, defeat. The rocket glared green and a million Frenchmen moaned.

Carpentier was born Jan. 12, 1894 at Lievin-Les-Lens in northern France. He began boxing at 14, was European welterweight champion at 17 and European heavyweight titlist at 19.

During the first World War he served as a lieutenant in the French air force.

In Carpentier's first American fight he knocked out Battling Levinsky in four rounds Oct. 12, 1920, winning the world light heavyweight title.

The first crown he wore was the French welterweight title which he won in June 1911 on a 16th round kayo. Four months later he went to London to take the European Welterweight title.

Carpentier soon started to have weight troubles, however, and moved up a grade to take a crack at the European middleweight crown. He won it with an 11th round knockout over Jim Sullivan in Monte Carlo, Feb. 12, 1912.

As he grew up, Georges (also called Gorgeous Georges) became more handsome and, of course, heavier. He outgrew the middleweight class by 1913 and at the age of 19 was settled around 180 pounds, the weight at which he stayed until he retired.

Carpentier took his next crown by knocking out Billy Wells at Ghent, Belgium in June 1913 to succeed to the European heavyweight title.

This was the golden period of Carpentier's career. Before the first World War broke out he had the attributes of youth, stamina and ambition and was virtually unbeatable in Europe. He served as a soldier with the French army during the war and shortly after fighting ceased, he signed for the world light

Drops, Finds $22,940 Ticket

HAZEL PARK, Mich. (UPI) — A superfecta ticket worth $22,940 lay on the floor of the Hazel Park Race Track for three hours last Saturday — and the lucky owners got it back.

The unidentified Grand Rapids, Mich., couple who bought it thought they had a loser and threw the ticket away, realizing their mistake only when listening to the radio while driving home.

The mishap to last Saturday's sixth race was 8-7-9-4 but nobody bought that superfecta combination. The elderly couple was unaware of that when they threw their $7.91 ticket under their chair on the top floor of the clubhouse.

Driving home some three hours later the couple heard on a post-race radio program that no exact winning tickets had been bought and only two 8-7-9 combinations had been sold.

"That's us," they shouted as they made an immediate U-turn back to the track, arriving about an hour after the track had closed.

Paul Marvin, chief of track security, told the couple the track was closed but let them in after they explained their plight.

They found the ticket where they had thrown it down in disappointment some three hours earlier.

A lone mutual clerk still working issued them a check and they returned home wiser and richer.

Morgan Heads Stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Morgan, whose ninth-inning single in the seventh game of the World Series enabled the Cincinnati Reds to win their first world championship in 35 years, is the only player named unanimously today to UPI's 1975 National League All-Star team.

The 32-year-old Morgan, who batted .327, hit 17 homers, knocked in 94 runs and stole 67 bases during the regular season, was joined on the All-Star team by two teammates—catcher Johnny Bench and outfielder George Foster.

Also elected to the team by UPI's 20-man board of baseball correspondents were first baseman Steve Garvey of the Los Angeles Dodgers, shortstop Larry Bowa of the Philadelphia Phillies, third baseman Bill Madlock of the Chicago Cubs, outfielders Greg Luzinski of the Phillies and Dave Parker of the Pittsburgh Pirates, starting pitchers Tom Seaver of the New York Mets and Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres and relief pitcher Al Hrabosky of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Pete Rose and Friends

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pete Rose remembers his first year with Cincinnati, how this well-meaning individual took him aside, where there was no danger of them being overheard, and told him he shouldn't be associating with the black players so much, it might hurt his career.

"Whadd'ya talkin' about?" countered the Reds' rookie. "They're the only ones who treat me half-decent."

The only reason this comes up at all now was because someone asked Pete Rose whether he'd be interested in managing some day.

"I'd love to be a manager some day," said Cincinnati's switch-hitting third baseman, presented with a new automobile by Sport Magazine Monday for being named the Most Valuable Player in the World Series. "I like to manage a team like we have."

"Who wouldn't?" a newsman needed Rose.

"No, I don't think you understand what I mean," Pete Rose said. "The reason I'd like managing a team like we have is not only because we have ballplayers with so much talent but because of the way we all get along together. Especially the blacks and the whites on the team. I honestly think that has a whole lot to do with our success."

"You know, when we were up in Boston I was reading about all the trouble the people were having there with busing, and when some of our players are traded away they come back and tell us of all the problems they have over on the other clubs. We don't have any of that on our club," Pete Rose went on.

"You've never seen other teams get along like our team. You don't go into our clubhouse and see five blacks sitting by themselves in one corner and five whites in another. What you see in our clubhouse is the way it's supposed to be—everybody together. I think people make too big a deal out of blacks and whites. I'm not trying to straighten out the country, but I wish these white people who don't like blacks and these black people who don't like whites could come into our lounge where our wives wait for us and see Tony Perez' kids, Ken Griffey's kids or my kids playing together."

"My little boy, Pete, is five. Tony has two boys and his youngest, Eduardo, is about the same age as my boy. Every night my wife, Karolyn, has to call Tony's wife, Pituka, because my little boy wants to dress the same way Eduardo does to go to the game."

"I have a restaurant in Cincinnati, and you know what my little boy told me the other day?" Pete Rose said. "He told me 'I wish Tony Perez owned our restaurant.' I asked him why? 'So Eddie and Victor could eat with us every day,' he said. I'll tell you this much: I'd do anything in the world for Tony Perez; I'd do anything in the world for Joe Morgan. I dunno, maybe I was brought up different. I went to school together with blacks and whites and my father and mother taught me to treat everybody equally. Religion makes no more difference to me than race or nationality. I don't care what religion a person is, Jewish, Catholic, Protestant or whatever, so long as he or she is a decent human being. My lawyer is Jewish and so is my accountant. You've heard that saying, haven't you? 'Roses are reddish and violets are blueish, if it wasn't for Christmas, we'd all be Jewish.'"

Pete Rose laughed. He looks much younger than 34 when he laughs.

Generally, it is open house at Pete Rose's home for his friends, and he doesn't have an enemy in the world.

Ballplayers from other clubs frequently visit Pete Rose because they like him. Players like Larry Bowa, Greg Luzinski, Dusty Baker and Ralph Garr are only a few he has had over for dinner. On the road, he has been a guest at their homes as well.

Funny thing about Pete Rose. During working hours, the only people he considers his friends are those wearing the same uniform.

After working hours, he makes no distinction. All ballplayers are the same to him. They are all friends of Pete Rose, and they're all welcome at his house.

Kirk Presents 10-Point Program

GEORGE A. KIRK

PHOENICIA
George A. Kirk, Republican candidate for supervisor in the Town of Shandaken, has put forth a 10-point program for town government he pledges to be accountable for if elected.

The points outlined by Kirk include:

- Restore confidence in town government.
- Establish priorities on major issues and insure a sincere effort is made to absolve each in the line of priority.

- To return the town board as the governing body with each member sharing equal responsibility in all decisions.

- To publicize and encourage all residents to participate in public hearings on major issues.

- To solicit and utilize residents with expert background in appointment to special committees.

- To establish a police commission comprised from each district, including the Village of Pine Hill, to make recommendations to the town board on duties for constables, car and foot patrol areas, and budget matters.

- With my experience in corporate financial management, and municipal budgets, I will not only insure that all budget preparations will be getting the most for the taxpayer's dollar, but to plan for the future by establishing capital reserve funds to earn interest and reduce borrowing for capital improvements.

- To establish a business development committee making the town board a responsible part of the business community. The town will only benefit as this will represent a combined effort for seeking government aid in an advisory and financial capacity and revitalizing the interest for better and more business.

- To actively participate in planning and zoning board meetings. To be fully aware of decisions vital to the town's interest. This will further insure that all decisions and legislation will be thoroughly studied and reviewed by all town board members so all important facts will be made available at public hearings.
- To make myself available to town residents.

Cooper Denounces Rumors

WEST SHOKAN
Richard Cooper, Democratic candidate for councilman in the Town of Olive, has denounced "those people in the opposing party who have resorted to vicious rumors."

"I am both amazed and ashamed that some of my fellow citizens cannot deal in truth during the present campaign," Cooper said. "I have heard things I have said become completely twisted by my opponents."

Cooper said it is impossible to answer each rumor. "However, I will continue to try to answer with facts for I believe most of the citizens will believe these more."

Cooper said that some of the answers he gave at a recent candidate's night held in the town have been the cause of these attacks.

"I said that the town board should become more interested in the services given the residents," he said. "Instead, people are being told that I want the town board to run these services. Nothing could be further from the truth."

Cooper also said that his opposition has distorted and attacked his views on the fire department. "I had hoped to keep them out of the political arena, but it seems my opponents have brought them in,"

he said. "I believe the Olive Fire Department is doing an extremely efficient job at providing protection to the town at an extremely low cost."

"In fact, it is an excellent model for how an organization can be run, and why it is wise for government to have a contract with separate groups which provide service to the town."

Authorities Thwart A Suicide Attempt

TOWN OF SHANDAKEN
A suicide attempt Monday morning by a Town of Ulster woman was thwarted by authorities who located her in time for doctors to save her life.

first found her in the car, but she lost consciousness on the way to the hospital, deputies said.

The woman was listed in satisfactory condition at Kingston Hospital today.

Ulster County Sheriff's deputies said they received a report Monday morning from Town of Ulster Constables who had been told that a 26-year-old woman had left a suicide note and apparently driven off.

Deputies put out an alert for the unidentified woman's vehicle, and at about 10:45 a.m. the car was located by Town of Shandaken Constables in the Mt. Tremper area. The woman who had reportedly taken a large quantity of pills, was conscious when authorities

Meanwhile, in area fires: A blaze Monday afternoon at a residence at 87 Foxhall Avenue in Kingston is under investigation.

Fire officials said the fire destroyed an outside enclosed porch at the rear of the house, owned by Donald and Ada Snyder, and caused damage to other areas of the two-story residence.

The cause of the fire was listed as undetermined.

There were no injuries. Firemen were at the scene from about 12:45 to 2:15 p.m.

Inmates Hold Hostages In Oklahoma Prison

GRANITE, Okla. (UPI) — Nine inmates who seized three hostages and barricaded themselves in the Oklahoma State Reformatory kitchen today released one of their captives because he was reported suffering from a heart ailment.

A spokesman said the hostage, Leonard S. Summers, was taken to the prison infirmary for observation. The 53-year-old guard had complained of chest discomfort shortly before his release.

The inmates, complaining about the loss of Christmas package privileges in the prison, occupied the kitchen late Monday, presumably armed with knives from the butcher shop, and seized three supervisors as hostages.

Rep. David Riggs (D-Ulster)

Stars Assemble

American film director Vincente Minnelli is flanked by his daughter, actress Liza Minnelli (L), and actress Ingrid Bergman, during news conference in Rome this week at which he announced he'll direct the film, "Nina," which will star Miss Bergman and Liza. All three are Academy Award winners: Liza ("Cabaret," 1972), Miss Bergman ("Gaslight," 1944 and "Anastasia," 1956), and Minnelli ("Gigi," 1958). (UPI) chairman of the House Public Safety and Penal Affairs Committee and author of numerous penal reform bills, talked by telephone with one of the nine inmates before dawn and said he was optimistic the confrontation would be settled peacefully.

Riggs said prison officials now were awaiting a response from the prisoners.

"I cannot comment about it until at least this confrontation is resolved," Riggs said about the 75-minute conversation. "At this point I feel the people involved are making every effort to be reasonable."

Riggs said he was referring to both the inmates and the prison officials.

Shortly after the takeover, state Corrections Director Dr.

Ned Benton had said there would be no amnesty for the rebellious convicts and warned that force would be used if necessary to free the captives.

A spokesman for Gov. David Boren, however, said prison officials were awaiting the inmate's response to Riggs' conversation before deciding on a course of action.

"It has sort of settled into a waiting game."

Another Test Blast In Nevada

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — An underground nuclear blast, apparently the strongest in several years, swayed buildings 100 miles away in Las Vegas today and was felt 300 miles away in Los Angeles and Sacramento, Calif.

"It was really noticeable," said one long-time observer in Las Vegas. "It was stronger than I had felt in sometime."

The nuclear weapon, code named "Kasseri," was touched off at 9:30 a.m. EST 4,150 feet below the surface of the Nevada Test Site. The Energy Research and Development Administration said in advance it would have a yield of between 200 kilotons and one megaton. A megaton is the equivalent of one million tons of TNT, enough to fill a large baseball stadium.

Initial reports said no radiation leaked into the atmosphere.

A bartender at the ancient Exchange Club in Beatty, 30 miles from ground zero, said the blast shook the adobe building. The building was evacuated before the test as were half a dozen mines in the area.

The shock of the test reached Las Vegas about one minute later and was felt noticeably a few seconds later in Sacramento and Los Angeles. Las Vegas observers said the blast caused a distinct back and forth jerking sensation. Chandeliers swayed back and forth for nearly one minute and clothes and power lines whipped noticeably. Workers on high-rise buildings in Las Vegas were warned in advance not to be in precarious positions when the blast went off.

"Kasseri" was the 13th announced nuclear test by the United States this year and the second in less than a week. A Department of Defense test was set off last week.

ROSENDALE Thursday, Nov. 6.

The hearing will be open for one hour for anyone wishing to speak for or against the budget.

Polio isn't dead. It's just sleeping.

Let's finish it for good.

That killer, that "thing of the past" is with us again, and the only reason is that people are getting careless.

The shocking fact is that, right now, 4 out of 10 preschool children are not immunized against polio.

It's so very simple that people are simply forgetting. The results can be tragic.

Some children may get caught. See to it yours don't.

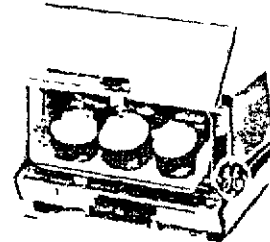

Make sure they get all their immunizations — diphtheria, tetanus, rubella — all of them they need.

And get them when they need them. Before it's too late.

Terrorist Kidnapers Make Bomb of Hostage

MONASTEREVIN, Ireland (UPI) — The kidnapers of Dutch businessman Tiede Herrema have hung a string of explosives around his neck, it was reported today.

A self-proclaimed Irish guerrilla, a blanket over his head to avoid identification, told a television interviewer Monday he was a member of a seven-member gang that kidnapped Herrema.

Two kidnapers — Eddie Gallagher, 27, and Marian Coyle, 19 — are holding the hostage in an upstairs bedroom of a two-story apartment building in the town of Monasterevin.

"They have six or seven sticks of gelignite and Marian Coyle is responsible for placing them round Herrema's neck," the unidentified man told the Dutch television station Aktua.

He described Gallagher as a

Ambiguity Of Hall Issue Hit

KINGSTON Herbert Cutler, chairman of the Kingston Historic Landmarks Preservation Commission, says the commission has joined with Friends of Historic Kingston in criticizing the ambiguity of the city hall question on the ballot next week.

Stating that the question needed "explanation and clarification," Cutler said:

"We would like to point out that a significant portion of the 1.5 million dollar figure would be spent on a parking facility and not completely on renovation of the building itself. Construction of a parking facility is not essential to the building's usage.

There is no basis for the 1.5 million dollar figure stated in the referendum in the form of any known engineering estimates or professional studies. This fact has been established after checking with several city officials. Any reasonable, thorough proposal for reuse of this building will prove that the building can be renovated at a much lower cost than is proposed in the referendum.

The $500,000 grant appropriated by the State is a matching grant which must be matched either entirely or in part by the city through either a bonded amount that can be amortized by rental receipts or by the use of Federal Better Communities Act funds. How often does any city receive such a windfall? To let it slip through our fingers would be disastrous," he said.

"The question states that the building would be renovated as a 'landmarks preservation site' which is true to a degree, but the aim is to restore it as an income producing property for the city and not as a useless monument. The building has many possible uses that have been proposed by highly qualified experts Cutler said.

Women's Symposium Delegate

ROSENDALE Barbara DeStefano, two-term Rosendale Village Trustee and currently a Democratic candidate for the Ulster County Legislature from District 6, was one of 250 women invited to participate in a special United Nations symposium held today in observance of International Women's Year.

The topic of discussion at the New York City symposium was the role of women in various careers, including public service.

In remarks prepared for today's symposium, Ms. DeStefano discussed the contributions that women can make in the public sector.

"There's a positive side to the lessons women can learn from being cast in a passive role," she noted. "I think women in political life sometimes have a keener sense of injustice precisely because, historically, they have had so many obstacles to overcome themselves. This greater awareness very often results in a greater capacity to understand and respond to the varied problems of people."

Ms. DeStefano was scheduled to participate in a panel discussion coordinated by Professor Usha Agarwal of the State University College at New Paltz. Others participating at today's seminar included Gov. Hugh Carey, New York City Mayor Abraham Beame and newscaster Walter Cronkite.

"man with a dual personality. One minute he is a normal, nice person, the next he is a dangerous maniac, ready to kill Herrema."

Senior police officials refused to comment on the interview.

Police and troops have surrounded the kidnap hideout in Monasterevin for a week but have failed to talk the captors into releasing Herrema. He was seized 26 days ago in the city of Limerick.

Army and police marksmen maintained a 24-hour vigil around the building.

The unidentified man said the Irish Republican Army leadership had been told in advance of the kidnapping but turned a blind eye to it.

He gave details of how the kidnapers stopped Herrema's auto in Limerick, transferred him to their own car and took him to a farmhouse in the village of Kinnity.

He said they then took Herrema to Portlaurie, the site of one of Ireland's major prisons for IRA guerrillas, and finally to the hideout in Monasterevin.

He said Herrema was tied to a chair and blindfolded in the daytime. He slept in a sleeping bag at night guarded by Gallagher with a rifle.

"The man was under severe shock and did not know what was happening," he said. "He was offered food and could not eat."

proposed amendment, which would become effective September 1, 1976, is to expand the procedures now provided in the Constitution, whereby a judge or justice may be censured, suspended, removed from office for cause or retired for mental or physical disability. The Court on the Judiciary, to consist of five judges, to be appointed by the Legislature, would be retained with power to remove, retire, suspend or censure a judge or justice of any court in the Unified Court System of the State. Additionally, an eight-member judicial council, to be established with power, on its own motion or upon receipt of complaints from the public, to investigate the qualifications, conduct or fitness to perform of any such judge or justice. The commission may either recommend to the Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals the convening of the Court on the Judiciary or it may recommend that a judge or justice be censured, suspended or retired as provided by law. In the latter case, a judge or justice affected by such a determination may request the convening of the Court on the Judiciary. Decisions of the Court on the Judiciary would be appealable to the Court of Appeals by permission of the Court of Appeals.

U.S. Trade Balance Shows Another Plus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite an increase in oil and sugar imports, the U.S. balance of trade figures registered their eighth consecutive monthly increase in September, the Commerce Department said today.

The department said, however, that the $976 million surplus last month was $59 million below August.

The trade figures for the first nine months of 1975 showed a surplus of $8.4 billion.

Commerce said oil imports — in the last month before the 10 per cent world price increase — rose $329 million. Sugar imports increased $144 million, apparently because of storm damage to U.S. sugar plantations.

Partially offsetting the rise in oil and sugar imports was a $326 million decline in imports of cars, trucks and other transport equipment.

All imports in September totaled $8.2 billion, up 2.9 per cent from August. Total exports increased only 1.9 per cent to $9.2 billion.

Commerce said $112 million in wheat exports were the primary contributor to the monthly increase.

The balance of trade measures the value of goods traded between the United States and other nations. During periods of surplus, the dollar improves on international currency markets and inflationary pressures are eased within the United States.

The eight months of surplus this year have contributed to a moderation in inflation, compared to double digit rates last year when the United States was running a $1.8 billion trade deficit.

Banking on the Volare To Shore Up Chrysler

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. President Eugene Cafiero drove the first of the new Plymouth Volare off the assembly line. Then he got out of the way.

"We don't want to lose any production," Cafiero explained. "We expect to sell about half a million and we'd like to be put in the position of having to worry about building more."

The one-hour ceremony Monday to launch production of the Volare and Dodge Aspen luxury compacts already had cost the third-ranking auto firm about 30 cars. The firm wants as many as possible in dealer inventories by the formal public introduction in early December.

modest $21 million in the last three months of 1975.

Analysts said a General Motors' report, also expected to drop, would show a $200 million profit compared with a low $16 million in depressed 1974. Ford's report Thursday was expected to show a $7 million drop from last year's third quarter $47 million profit.

Despite the near-record loss, Cafiero said he expected the luxury compacts would provide "some real escalation in our sales."

Finesse Sets Up Two Entries

By Oswald &amp; James Jacoby

The need for an entry finesse is usually the result of some overbidding. South didn't know what to do after East opened the bidding in front of him. Eventually, he decided to overbid to six hearts. As he explained later, he had hopes that East or West would believe him and take a save at seven diamonds. When they just passed and West opened the diamond queen, South was stuck with his bid.

A quick spade finesse, a trump to dummy's 10, another spade finesse and it was all over but the scoring

He ruffed the second diamond high and saw that he had one chance for his contract. He needed to take two spade finesses and that meant he had to find two entries to dummy.

Therefore, at trick three he led a low trump and finessed dummy's eight spot. This would have left him two tricks short if East had produced the nine, but when East had to

'Banks, Employees Must Take Lumps'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns is proposing that New York City banks and municipal employees take some lumps as the price for federal help to avert the city's default.

Burns' proposal introduced a new element in congressional negotiations over how to rescue the city without rewarding those within it who are often seen as the villains of New York's financial troubles. Decisions are expected this week in the House and Senate committees that have been considering whether Washington should come to New York's rescue with a federal guarantee of multibillion-dollar loans to the city.

Both panels are expected to submit legislation forward. But opposition is strong in both chambers, and a filibuster looms in the Senate.

Treasury Secretary William Simon, who has argued New York City's default, while "awful," would be preferable to federal help, was to offer his latest views today before a House banking subcommittee.

The city owes $12.3 billion. Since March it has been unable to sell bonds to repay debts.

Default on debts could occur in early December. No one knows whether the city then could meet day-to-day police, fire, sanitation, health, welfare and education expenses.

UPI obtained a copy of a letter from Burns to Rep. Thomas Ashley, D-Ohio, chairman of the House subcommittee. While still opposing a federal role, Burns said that if Congress decides to help the city it should require unions to renegotiate pension plans and banks to accept delayed payment and reduced interest rates on the money they have lent at interest rates of 6 to 11 per cent.

"There are no groups whose interests would be more drastically affected by a default than New York City financial institutions and city employees," Burns said.

"It is highly appropriate that these groups, who have such a great stake in the continued vitality of the city, be required to demonstrate their own firm commitment to the city's rehabilitation as a prerequisite for federal aid."

Key Senate staff members said support for federal help is increasing from the financial world but the public, as it focuses on the issue, is becoming increasingly hostile.

"The general public is dismayed about any bill, even a bill to help get New York on its feet after default occurs," one aide said. "The public seems to be saying they don't want any part of it."

Federal Assistance . . . Realistic

ATLANTA (UPI) — The president of the nation's fourth largest bank says federal assistance to New York City is "the only realistic solution" to prevent the city's default on its municipal bonds.

John F. McGillicuddy, president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Bank of New York, Monday urged the federal government to intervene in New York's fiscal crisis to help solve problems he said are not entirely of the city's own making.

"I believe the government and people of New York City must accept a large measure of blame for the present crisis," he said. "We have done so."

"But other forces were at work which were beyond the control of the city. New Yorkers did not invent recession. They did not invent inflation. They did not instigate the oil price increase by OPEC countries. Yet these are among the immediate causes of the city's crisis."

McGillicuddy, keynote speaker at the Bank Administration Institute convention, said "inflation and recession, in the case of New York City, was imposed on an economic base that has been shrinking for many years. Total employment, for instance, topped out in 1969 and has been declining ever since."

James E. Smith, U.S. Comptroller of Currency, told the convention nine small banks across the country could become insolvent if a New York City default occurs. He did not name the banks, which he said had a total of $800 million in assets.

"A New York City default alone would have some adverse impact (on the nation's banks), that adverse impact, while unpleasant, could be dealt with and be dealt with in an orderly way," he said.

Malpractice Question . . . The Battle Continues

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Doctors, lawyers and hospital chiefs fought it out in the hearing room Monday as the special panel created by Gov. Hugh L. Carey attempted to come to grips with the medical malpractice insurance question.

Many of the speakers during the day-long session contended that the problem, one of the first encountered by the Carey administration, was ready to flare up again unless changes were made in proposed legislation.

George B. Allen, president of the Hospital Association, said his organization had "grave concerns about the premiums proposed by the Medical Liability Insurance Association," the group set up to take over malpractice coverage earlier this year.

Allen said if the rates were approved, hospitals in the state would be paying more than $150 million for malpractice insurance which, he said, "means paying more for professional liability insurance than for patients' food and laundry."

A spokesman for the State Trial Lawyers Association claimed that proposed legislation governing malpractice suits would virtually deprive patients of a chance to sue for alleged malpractice.

The spokesman contended that the bill would grant doctors almost fool-proof immunity in that it would relieve them of the obligation to testify in malpractice suits.

Dr. Richard L. Rovit, speaking for the State Neurological Society, countered that malpractice suits had gotten out of hand and that trial lawyers were exploiting the field.

"The system of adversary-oriented civil procedures in the court-jury system," he said in a prepared statement, "has broken down under pressures related for the most part to the expensive, cumbersome and capricious system and to its heavy exploitation by a small segment of the legal profession."

Rovit warned that older doctors were retiring prematurely and that younger doctors were unable to afford higher malpractice rates, thus driving physicians out of the state.

"The Special Advisory Panel on Medical Malpractice, chaired by Dr. William J. McGill, has been holding public and private hearings for several months in an effort to draft legislation aimed at averting further malpractice problems."

The situation arose late last year when the Argonaut Insurance Co., which wrote most of the malpractice insurance coverage in the state, announced steep rate increases.

Frills Out

For Homes

KIAMESHA LAKE, N.Y.

(UPI) — Homes built during the rest of the 1970s will have to contain as few frills as possible to keep their cost within the reach of most buyers, according to the new president of the New York State Builders Association.

Julius Mehrberg, elected at the group's annual convention in this Catskill resort, said Sunday night fewer housing units are being built today than at any time since the 1940s.

"As things stand now, more housing is deteriorating and being abandoned than being built," said Mehrberg, 46, secretary-treasurer of Florence Development Corp. of Staten Island.

He called on builders to "cut profits, if necessary, as well as overhead and construction costs to help spur a recovery" in the housing industry.

An important reason for keeping new homes as simple and inexpensive as possible, he said, was a new federal subsidy program designed to enable homebuyers to obtain 5 per cent mortgages.

The recently announced program is tailored to those seeking homes selling for less than $30,000, Mehrberg said.
